Ebola Treatment Centre in Nzérékoré, Guinea

Alliance for International Medical Action (ALIMA) has been running a 40-bed Ebola Treatment Centre in Nzérékoré, Guinea since November 2014. Patients with confirmed Ebola infection are now being offered the new anti-viral agent, favipiravir, as part of a multi-center clinical trial run by the French National Institute for Health (INSERM) in collaboration with the Guinean Ministry of Health. The UN Mission for Ebola Emergency Response (UNMEER) has donated two vehicles for use at the treatment centre.

Glossary of terms

All sources of UN funding	Covers technical cooperation and other development assistance from regular, extra budgetary and trust funds, as well as emergency, humanitarian and peacekeeping operations.
Development Assistance Committee (DAC) member countries	A key forum of major bilateral donors who work together to increase the effectiveness of their common efforts to support sustainable development. DAC consists of 28 member countries as well as the European Union. ¹
Developing countries and countries with economies in transition	Countries for which the United Nations provides financial/technical assistance. A list of these countries is attached as Annex 2.
Goods	Objects of every kind and description including raw materials, products and equipment and objects in solid, liquid or gaseous form, and electricity, as well as services incidental to the supply of the goods if the value of those incidental services does not exceed that of the goods themselves.
Procurement	The acquisition through purchase or lease of real property, goods or other products (including intellectual property), works or services.
Services	Work, duty or labour performed by a contractor pursuant to a contract. Rendering of services may involve the associated provision of utilities or facilities if specified in the terms of the contract. Typical examples of services include security, catering, cleaning, travel management, event management, IT services, training, freight forwarding, and consulting.
Sustainable procurement	Sustainable procurement practices integrate requirements, specifications and criteria that are compatible and in favour of the protection of the environment, of social progress and in support of economic development, namely by seeking resource efficiency, improving the quality of products and services and ultimately optimizing costs.
United Nations Global Compact	The UN Global Compact is a strategic policy initiative for businesses that are committed to aligning their operations and strategies with ten universally accepted principles in the areas of human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. By doing so, business, as a primary driver of globalization, can help ensure that markets, commerce, technology and finance advance in ways that benefit economies and societies everywhere.

Introduction

The Annual Statistical Report on Procurement by United Nations organizations (ASR) is 31 years old, having first been presented in 1984. It was prepared by the Inter-Agency Procurement Services Office (IAPSO) of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and submitted to the 39th session of the General Assembly¹. By Resolution 39/220, the General Assembly established a need for recurring reporting of this type of information and encouraged organizations of the UN system to participate in this important exercise. Since 2008 the report has been compiled by the United Nations Office for Project Services (UNOPS). The 2014 Annual Statistical Report on United Nations Procurement (ASR) reports on procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition. The report highlights the performance of the United Nations system in increasing opportunities for vendors in such countries.

In the context of the continuous attention to sustainability within the UN system, the information conveyed by the ASR is also supplemented by sustainable procurement indicators. For last year's report, a revised set of questions was developed for the participating UN organizations, which provided a better understanding of the UN system performance in terms of sustainable procurement implementation. The reporting framework follows sustainability integration throughout the procurement process and also puts focus on specific areas within sustainable procurement.

In addition, the 2014 ASR examines procurement by UN organizations from vendors that support the United Nations Global Compact.² This section of the report measures procurement by the UN system from vendors that embrace universal principles in the areas of human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. Organizations of the UN system give no preferential treatment to Global Compact signatories, but strongly encourage vendors to subscribe to the Global Compact and support its underpinning principles.

This publication has been produced by UNOPS on behalf of the organizations of the UN system. UNOPS is grateful to the UN organizations for their continuous support and contributions that make the publication possible. UNOPS hopes that this report provides useful information on the broad spectrum of procurement by the UN system and, continually strives to improve and refine the report to better meets the expectations and objectives of government stakeholders, donors, the business community and UN organizations.³

Amendment

The amended version of the Annual Statistical Report on UN Procurement was published on October 1, 2015. Amendments were made to reflect a revised data set of UNDP and WFP. These changes have not affected the overall procurement volume ($17.2 Billion) of the United Nations as reported for 2014, but have had minor influence on the distribution of the procurement of goods and services, and information on procurement from certain countries. Amendments are reflected in the Executive Summary and other relevant sections of the report and have resulted in updates in the following sections;

- The Executive Summary has been amended to reflect revisions in the data set of UNDP and WFP.
- Procurement volume from certain countries have changed, which has affected the procurement profiles of the top twenty developing countries and countries with economies in transition, and procurement profiles of the DAC member countries. All country profiles have been updated based on the revised data.
- Total procurement of goods and services (by supplier country or country of contractor) – complete update.
- Total procurement of by UN organization – UNDP and WFP updated.
- Procurement of goods and Procurement of services – UNDP, WFP, and totals per country updated.
- Top ten categories of procurement by UN organization – UNDP and WFP updated.
- Share of UN organization for each procurement category – UNDP, WFP and totals per category updated.

Methodology

The statistical data on procurement of goods and services for operational activities are requested from UN organizations. To facilitate collection and compilation of the large amount of rich data, UNOPS provides templates, together with instructions for completing the reporting requirements.

UNOPS relies on participating UN organizations in the compilation and reporting of the statistics. The 2014 report compiles information supplied by 35 UN organizations in total, which is an increase from 33 agencies that provided data for the 2013 report. This year, the report also includes information from the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC), the International Maritime Organization (IMO) and the International Monetary Fund (IMF), whereas the Universal Postal Union (UPU) did not submit their procurement data this year.

The country data in the category “goods” is based on the country of supplier; the data in the category “services” is based on the country of contractor. Moreover, purchase orders and contracts for services are reported by contract amount and not by expenditures incurred. Due to technical limitation in procurement systems in use, many UN organizations cannot report data based on country of origin of goods, or on actual expenditures at the present time.

To enable reporting on categories of goods and services across all UN organizations, the participating organizations are requested to provide procurement data base on the United Nations Standard Products and Services Code (UNSPSC)⁴, or to provide mapping tables of own internal category codes to the corresponding UNSPSC code.

The categorization of countries and territories used in the ASR adhere to those used by the Statistics Division, Department of Economic and Social Affairs. The report uses the following designations: developing countries, countries with economies in transition and developed countries. The designations “developing”, “in transition” and “developed” are intended for statistical convenience and do not express a judgment about the stage reached by a particular country or area in the development process.

Executive summary

2014 Annual Statistical Report on United Nations Procurement

Executive Summary

Total procurement of goods and services for operational activities of the UN system

The overall procurement volume (goods and services combined) of UN organizations in 2014 increased to $17.2 billion, from $16.1 billion in 2013 – an increase of 7.2 per cent⁵ (Figure 1). The total procurement of goods increased by $891 million, an increase of 11.7 per cent, while procurement of services increased by $264 million, a raise of 3.1 per cent.

Figure 1

Total procurement of goods and services, 2009-2014
(in millions of US dollars percentage)

The increase in the overall procurement volume is mainly attributable to a rise in volume from three organizations: the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), the United Nations Procurement Division (UN/PD), and the United Nations World Food Programme (WFP)⁶. The increase within these three organizations was due in part to a rise in the procurement of food products, transportation services, fuel and pharmaceuticals.

Since 2008, the procurement of services by the UN system has exceeded its procurement of goods. In 2014, due to 2 consecutive years of significant increase in the procurement volume of goods, the gap between procurement of goods and services are now close to equal, with the procurement of services still constituting the majority of the UN system's procurement representing 50.5 per cent and goods representing 49.5 per cent of the total procurement volume.

⁵ This year, 35 UN organizations reported procurement statistics as compared to 33 in 2013. Three agencies (UNFCCC, IMO and IMF) are new to this year's report, and one agency (UPU) reported its procurement in 2013, but did not provide data for 2014. This change in participating agencies represents $ 322.5 million of the total increase in UN procurement volume ($ 81.0 million in goods and $ 227.3 million in services).

Countries of supply to the UN in 2014

The UN system procured goods and services from 194 different countries in 2014, with 127 countries having an annual procurement volume of more than $10 million each in 2014. The next sections of the ASR examine the UN system's performance in increasing opportunities for vendors in developing countries and countries with economies in transition.

Ten major countries of supply to the UN system in 2014

The 10 major countries supplying UN organizations in 2014 included four developing countries or countries with economies in transition (Table 1), with the Russian Federation, the United Arab Emirates, Afghanistan and India accounting for 40.4 per cent of the total procurement volume of the top 10 countries of supply, compared to 37.4 per cent in 2013⁷. This corresponds to an increase in procurement volume from developing countries and countries with economies in transition within the 10 major countries of 3.0 percentage points.

In 2014, procurement of goods and services from the Russian Federation represented 2.4 per cent of the total procurement volume. Procurement from the Russian Federation consisted primarily of transportation services and food supplies. These goods and services were primarily procured by the UN/PD, WFP and the UNICEF.

This is the second consecutive year where the United Arab Emirates is featured among the 10 major countries to supply the UN system, with a share of total procurement volume in 2014 of 3.35 per cent. Procurement from the United Arab Emirates consisted primarily of fuel, construction services, shelter equipment and food products. These goods and services were primarily procured by UN/PD, WFP and UNHCR.

Afghanistan has featured as a top 10 supplier since 2004, and in 2014, moved from the fourth to the third-largest country to supply the UN system. Procurement from Afghanistan consisted primarily of fuel, food products, and community services procured by UNDP and UNOPS.

India has featured as a top 10 major country to supply UN organizations since 2000, and has maintained its position as the second-largest country of supply to the UN system in 2014, with a 7.1 per cent share of total UN procurement volume. This is the second consecutive year where procurement from India was more than $1 billion in volume. Procurement from India included pharmaceuticals, food supplies, medical equipment and management services, procured primarily by UNICEF, WFP and the Pan American Health Organization. With a total volume of $966.7 million in 2014, India is the largest country to supply to UN organizations with health-related goods and services.

The percentage share of total goods and services procured from the top 10 major countries of supply to the UN system experienced a decrease between 2004 and 2006, and again between 2009 and 2012, representing a widening of the geographical spread of the United Nations source of supply (Figure 2). For 2014, this downward trend has resumed, where the share of the top 10 countries of supply to the UN in the total procurement volume has decreased from 2013 to 2014 by 1.3 percentage points. At the same time, the share of procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition within the 10 major countries rose from 14.3 per cent in 2004 to 40.4 per cent in 2014.

⁷ The corresponding percentage for 2012 was 43.9 and 2011 was 30.7 per cent.

Procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition

General Assembly Resolution 57/279 (2005) on procurement reform encourages UN organizations to increase opportunities for suppliers from developing countries and countries with economies in transition. In 2007, General Assembly Resolution 61/246 (2007), reiterated the request. In response, UN organizations have placed more orders with suppliers from these countries. The growth of such orders continues to rise (Figure 3), with a cumulative increase of 40.2 per cent from 2009 to 2014. This increase represents an annual compounded growth rate of 7.0 per cent, compared with an overall average procurement volume growth of 4.6 per cent annually. In comparison, the annual compounded growth rate for developed countries was plus 0.2 per cent for the same period.

(in millions of US dollars and percentage)

In 2014, procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition increased by $870 million over 2013. Compared to the previous year, the share of procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition increased from 60.8 to 62.8 per cent (Figure 4). This represents the largest share of procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition to date. Procurement from unspecified countries was $378.9 million in 2014.

In total, procurement of goods and services from the top twenty developing countries and countries with economies in transition represented 39.3 per cent of overall UN procurement volume, an increase of 0.5 percentage points from the previous year. For a detailed overview of procurement volume trends, types of goods and services procured, as well as the share of UN procurement for each of the countries listed in Table 2, please refer to the procurement profiles of these countries available from page 25 onwards.

Procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition by region

Over the last 10 years, the share of UN procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition has increased significantly. Figure 5 illustrates this increase by showing the distribution of UN procurement in 2004 and in 2014, where procurement from countries with developing economies and countries with economies in transition is separated by region.⁸

Figure 5

Procurement volume of the UN system by region in 2004 and 2014

Figure 5 shows that the share of procurement from developed countries has decreased over the last 10 years (from 53 per cent to 37 per cent). This is consistent with UN resolutions encouraging UN organizations to increase opportunities for suppliers from developing countries and countries with economies in transition.

Countries with developing economies and countries with economies in transition within the Arab States grouping have seen the largest increase in the last 10 years of their share of the total procurement (with an increase from 7 per cent in 2004 to 15 per cent in 2014). Among countries within the Arab States grouping, the United Arab Emirates and the Syrian Arab Republic showed the largest growth in the last 10 years, with increases of $548 million and $258 million respectively.

The share of procurement from countries within Africa and the Asia-Pacific regions has also risen in the last 10 years: from 2004 to 2014, these two regions have seen their share of UN procurement increase by 7 and 4 percentage points respectively.

Among countries in the Asia-Pacific region, India and Afghanistan have seen particularly large increases in their procurement volume over the 10 year period; $1billion and $590 million increase, respectively.

In Africa, Kenya and Ethiopia represented the majority of the growth in procurement volume, with increases of $327million and $271 million respectively over the last 10 years.

The share of procurement from the European and CIS region has increased slightly, from 6 per cent in 2004 to 7 per cent in 2014. Turkey saw an increase of $317 in its procurement volume over the last 10 years, while procurement from The Russian Federation rose by $248 million over the same time period.

The Latin America and the Caribbean region witnessed a decrease in its share of the total UN procurement since 2004. Procurement from this region represented 5 per cent of the UN system's total procurement in 2014, a decrease from 9 per cent in 2004. However, it should be noted that the procurement volume from countries within the Latin America and the Caribbean region has almost doubled over the last 10 years (from $513 million to $940 million).

Countries with the largest increases in procurement volume from 2004 to 2014

As previously highlighted, the share of UN procurement from countries with developing economies and economies in transition has risen significantly over the last 10 years. The procurement from some developing countries and countries with economies in transition has shown a larger than average growth during that period (Figure 6).

The following five developing countries, representing the largest increase in procurement volume, saw their combined volume increase by more than $2.80 billion over the last 10 years: India, Afghanistan, United Arab Emirates, Kenya and Turkey. Each of these countries saw their procurement volume increase by 500 per cent or more from 2004 to 2014, except for Afghanistan, which rose 298 per cent.

Despite the decrease in the share of procurement coming from developed countries over the last 10 years, some developed countries have seen their procurement volume to the UN system grow substantially since 2004. The United States of America, with an increase of $879 million (137 per cent), and Switzerland, with an increase of $443 million (250 per cent), witnessed the largest growth among developed countries during the last 10 years.

Globally, the total UN procurement volume rose by $10.8 billion from 2004 to 2014.

Procurement by organizations of the UN system in 2013 and 2014

Despite the total procurement of the UN system having increased by $1,154 million in 2014, 14 of the 35 reporting organizations witnessed a decline in their procurement volume. Five organizations saw their procurement volume increase by more than 20 per cent over their 2013 volume.⁹ In particular, UNICEF, UN/PD and WFP showed an increase of more than $200 million each, and together represent 97.7 per cent of the total increase in procurement volume from 2013 to 2014.¹⁰ Figure 7 presents the procurement volume of the individual UN organizations in 2013 and 2014. The figure includes the percentage share of procurement from developing countries and those countries with economies in transition.¹¹

¹⁰ These three agencies accumulated $1.127 million in increase in procurement volume from 2013 to 2014.

Procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition by largest UN organizations

Figure 8 displays the procurement volume by the 10 largest UN organizations, which as a group represented 90.4 per cent of the overall procurement volume of the UN system. The figure also shows the 2014 share of procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition, with the change in per cent points over the previous year. Organizations are listed in descending order by total procurement volume in 2014. In total, procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition increased with $1.5 billion from the top 10 organizations.

Procurement by organizations of the UN system from developing countries and countries with economies in transition, in 2013 and 2014

Procurement by sectors of categories of goods and services

The UN system's procurement of goods and services consists of a wide variety of categories. They can be grouped into sectors of categories that relate to the different areas of procurement. Figure 9 shows the distribution of the UN's procurement across the largest sectors of categories of goods and services.

Figure 9 also illustrates that two sectors are significantly larger than others in terms of procurement volume: the health sector (pharmaceuticals, healthcare services, and medical and laboratory equipment) and the transport sector (transport services and motor vehicles). In 2014, the health sector represented 21 per cent of the UN system's procurement (22 per cent in 2013) while the transport sector represented 16 per cent of the procurement volume (same as 2013).

Three other sectors have a share of approximately 10 to 11 per cent of the UN's procurement volume in 2014: construction and engineering (construction supplies and services, engineering services, structures), food and farming (food, beverage, live plants and animals, farming accessories and services), and management and administrative services.

Combined, the five largest sectors of procurement account for 69 per cent (same as 2013) of the total procurement done by UN organizations in 2014.

Figure 9

Procurement of the UN system by sector of goods and services, in 2014
(in percentage)

Segments of goods and services procured from developed countries, developing countries and countries with economies in transition

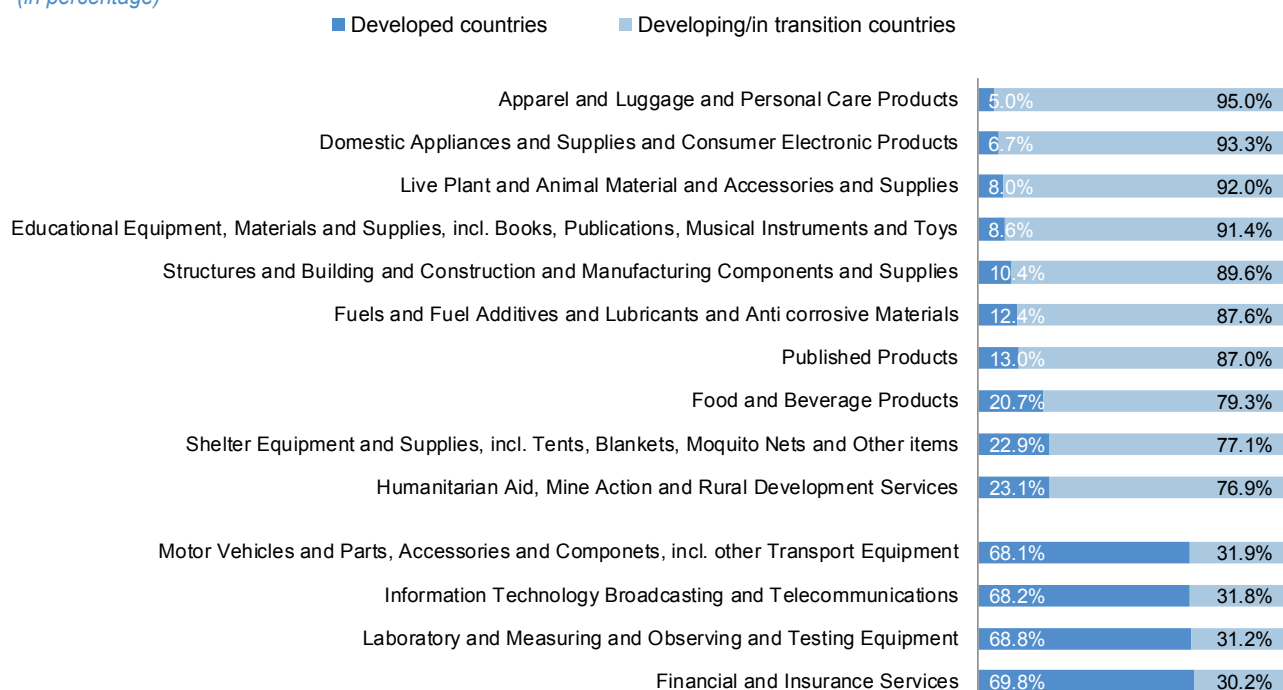

In recent years, a majority of the UN system's procurement has come from countries with developing economies and economies in transition. The following category analysis shows which categories are predominantly procured from developed countries and which categories are predominantly procured from developing countries and countries with economies in transition.

In 2014, 10 different categories of products and services were widely procured from countries with developing economies and economies in transition (Figure 9)¹². For each of those 10 categories, at least 66 per cent of the procurement volume came from developing countries and countries with economies in transition. Seven categories had more than 80 per cent of their procurement volume originating from developing countries and countries with economies in transition.¹³

In contrast, Motor Vehicles, laboratory equipment, IT equipment and financial and insurance services were largely procured from countries with developed economies. For each of these four categories, approximately three-quarters of the procurement volume were made from developed countries.

Sustainable procurement reporting in the UN system

Through its significant purchasing volume, UN organizations can deliver key policy objectives within all areas of sustainable development. As defined by the UN High Level Committee on Management's Procurement Network (HLCM PN), Sustainable Procurement (SP) integrates requirements, specifications and criteria that are compatible and in favour of the protection of the environment, of social progress and in support of economic development.

The sustainable procurement reporting section of the 2014 ASR aims at developing a baseline of where the UN system is in its progress towards implementing SP. For this reporting year, 29 out of the 35 organizations that returned statistical information have also provided information on their SP profile. SP actions are prevalent in the UN system, as seen by the 23 organizations reporting that they have started to implement SP initiatives of some nature. However, longer-term commitment in the form of a SP policy statement is not always present.

The analysis of integration of sustainability in the procurement process reveals that it is most widespread in the early stages, i.e. in the requirement definition stage. In this sense, the UN Sustainable Procurement Guidelines facilitate implementation of SP in the procurement process, by providing criteria that may be used for the requisition and procurement of given goods and services. Procurement spend within categories covered by UN Sustainable Procurement Guidelines represents a significant share of the total procurement volume of the UN system.

Another instrument that can guide an SP process is the United Nations Supplier Code of Conduct, which expresses the expectations that the UN has of its suppliers. Twenty-seven out of the 33 reporting organizations require their suppliers to register their interest in doing business with the organization through the United Nations Global Marketplace (UNGM), where acceptance of the United Nations Supplier Code of Conduct is a mandatory requirement.

Sustainable procurement also involves helping suppliers, especially in developing countries and countries with economies in transition, become more efficient and competitive in larger markets. 29 per cent of the reporting organizations have initiated programmes to enhance sustainability performance in the supply chain.

Eleven of the reporting organizations have SP interventions planned for 2015, demonstrating that SP implementation is indeed advancing within the UN system.

Procurement from UN Global Compact members

The UN system can also minimize environmental and social risks related to the supply chain by encouraging its suppliers to sign up to the United Nations Global Compact principles in the areas of human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. The share of UN procurement volume from Global Compact members has grown steadily over the last 5 years in terms of actual volume; while its proportion of procurement volume has decreased of 2 percentage points this year, from 27.2 percent in 2013 to 25.3 percent in 2014. The main share of procurement from Global Compact members originates from developed countries, to the contrary of overall UN procurement. The largest share of procurement from Global Compact members in developing countries can be found in the Asian region.

Sustainable procurement in the UN system

2014 Annual Statistical Report on United Nations Procurement

Sustainable procurement in the UN system

"Sustainable Procurement practices integrate requirements, specifications and criteria that are compatible and in favor of the protection of the environment, of social progress and in support of economic development, namely by seeking resource efficiency, improving the quality of products and services and ultimately optimizing costs."

Sustainable Procurement as defined by the HLCM PN

The emphasis on sustainability within the UN system was renewed in the outcome document of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development, Rio+20, "The Future We Want" (GA/RES/66/288, adopted on 27 July 2012).

Sustainable Procurement (SP) is one of the main means to achieve sustainability according to Agenda 21¹⁴ and Chapter III of the Johannesburg Plan of Implementation¹⁵. SP is also one of the thematic priorities of the UN High Level Committee on Management's Procurement Network (HLCM PN), implemented through its Working Group on Sustainable Procurement.

UN procurement spend, which represented $17.2 billion in 2014, can influence markets towards innovation and sustainability. Through its significant purchasing power, UN organizations can deliver key policy objectives within all areas of sustainable development. With respect to the environment, SP can help organizations to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, improve water efficiency and support recycling by considering concepts such as whole life costing. Positive social results from SP include capacity building, poverty reduction and improved equity. From an economic perspective, SP can generate income, optimize costs and support the transfer of skills and technology.

Figure 12

SP reporting among UN organizations, 2010-2014
(in number of organizations)

For the reporting year 2014, 29 out of the 35 organizations of the UN system that provided procurement data also provided information on their SP profile. Based on procurement volume, the organizations that have reported on their SP profile together comprise 75 per cent of total UN procurement spend. The reporting rate continues to increase from previous years (Figure 12). It is worth noting that this increase is, at least in part, linked to the data collection methodology, which also included one-on-one interviews as well as simplified and streamlined reporting.

The SP reporting framework focuses on approaches for implementing and managing SP in the UN context by integrating environmental, social and economic aspects into the procurement process. This framework emphasizes the areas of policy and strategy, sustainability integration into the procurement process, internal capacity building, and supply chain development.

¹⁵ The Johannesburg Declaration on Sustainable Development was adopted at the World Summit on Sustainable Development (WSSD), sometimes referred to as Earth Summit 2002, at which the Plan of Implementation of the World Summit on Sustainable Development was also agreed upon.

Twenty-three organizations (79 per cent of those that reported on SP) reported that they have started to implement SP initiatives of some kind, including interventions such as provision of SP training and support for sustainability integration in the procurement process. In 2013, twenty-four organizations started to implement SP initiatives of some kind.

Policy and strategy

In order for SP to be delivered consistently across an organization, both high-level commitment and a well-structured approach are necessary. High-level commitment is generally expressed through a policy document that describes the overall principles and goals pursued by the organization. A well-structured approach means a programme or strategy that incorporates assessment of sustainability risks in procurement, prioritization of spend areas, development of action plans and monitoring of progress. The reporting framework consequently differentiates between having implemented an SP program, i.e. having a structured approach in place for SP, and having introduced ad hoc SP initiatives.

Figure 13 demonstrates that while SP actions are prevalent in the UN system, high-level commitment in the form of a SP policy statement is not always present. Of the reporting agencies that have reported implementation of any SP initiatives, only 30 per cent have adopted an SP policy to support their programmes.

Case study: UNFPA green procurement strategy

In 2014, UNFPA created and implemented the Introduction to Sustainability Pilot Programme as a knowledge-sharing initiative where the suppliers work together towards a greener production and UNFPA supplier chain. Also, in 2014 UNFPA conducted its first environmental inspection to one of its suppliers. It was a pilot inspection in order to improve the auditing system in the future. Moreover, in 2014 UNFPA were also active in the green and sustainable research field. UNFPA, with the help of an independent laboratory, conducted 2 research studies to reduce the environmental foot print of male condoms (one study looked at the extension of self-life to 6 or 7 years and the other study looked at new shapes and sizes of individual packaging and thereby reducing packaging, aluminum, plastic etc. with as much as 66%).

Sustainability integration in the procurement process

The inclusion of sustainability principles into the procurement process is an integral and critical step in the implementation of SP practices. Sustainability considerations can be integrated at various stages, from planning to contract management. The reporting framework determines the level of support within the UN system for integrating sustainability in the procurement process. This is measured through three specific interventions: inclusion of sustainability criteria in requirement definitions; use of whole life costing (life-cycle costs) in financial evaluations; and incorporation of sustainability aspects in contracts terms.

As Figure 14 demonstrates, the integration of sustainability is most widespread in the early stages of the procurement process, i.e. in the requirement definition stage. From a qualitative assessment of the reported cases, it appears that sustainability requirements have been integrated more frequently in the form of environmental criteria than social criteria.

The reporting framework mainly focuses on whether or not organizations support the different SP interventions within its procurement operations. Advanced indicators also measure the estimated share of procurements that have sustainability integrated.

While some organizations have the capacity to estimate the extent of sustainability integration into the different steps, it became clear that the UN system overall currently has limited capacity to report on SP quantitatively. As shown in Figure 15, the rate of integration of sustainability is wide-ranging within the UN system.

Figure 14

Sustainability integration in the procurement process, 2014
(in percentage of reporting organizations)

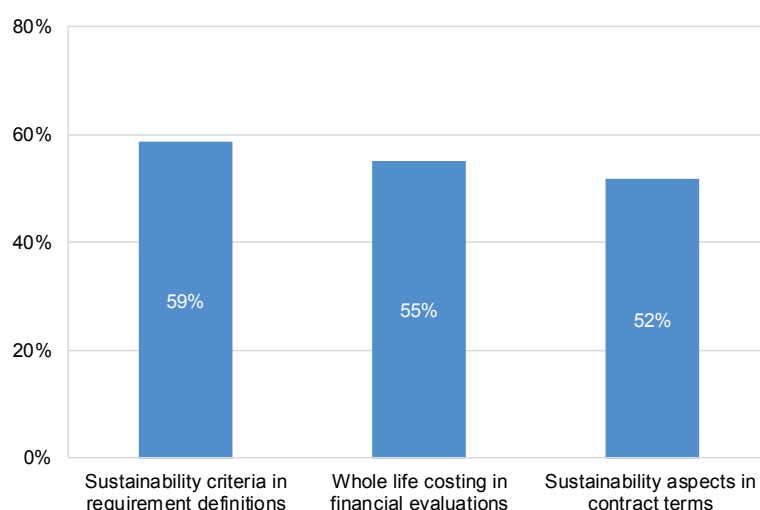

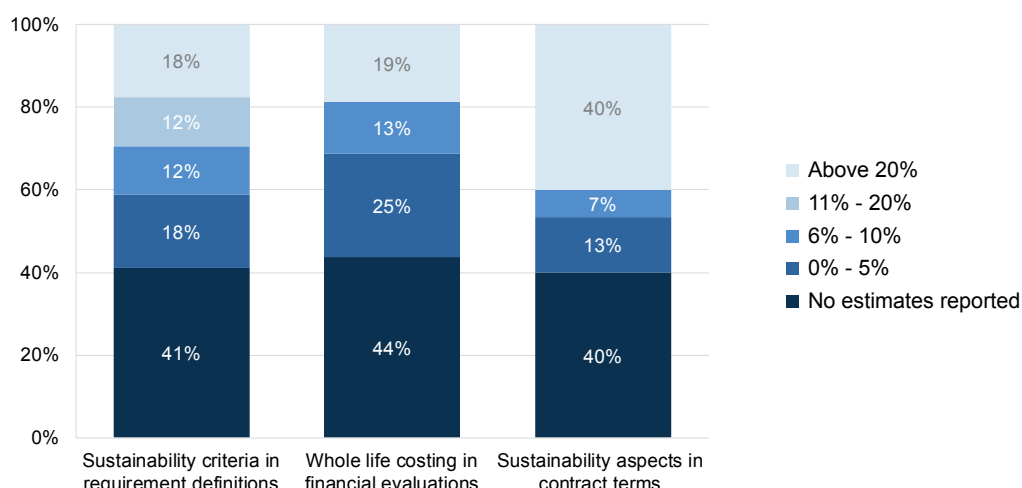

Figure 15

Level of sustainability implementation in the procurement process (estimations based on number of tenders) as share of organizations implementing SP, 2014
(in percentage)

The UN Sustainable Procurement Guidelines¹⁶ facilitate implementation of SP in the procurement process by providing criteria that may be used for the requisition and procurement of given goods and services. They provide concrete guidance on how to integrate sustainability in requirements, specifications and criteria. The guidance covers the goods and services' key environmental impacts and social considerations, as well as the most appropriate means of verification, including information on the availability of sustainable products and whole life costing.

Case study: UNOPS life-cycle costing tool for vehicles

To facilitate integration of sustainability in its procurement process, UNOPS has created a life-cycle costing tool for vehicles. This tool allows the evaluation of additional items during the procurement process such as fuel consumption, maintenance costs and resale value of the vehicle after a specified period of time. Lower life-cycle costs associated with lower fuel consumption bring a clear environmental benefit.

¹⁶ The UN Sustainable Procurement Guidelines have been developed by Sustainable UN (SUN), a UNEP initiative, in collaboration with UNOPS, ILO and ITC/ILO with support from the HLCM-PN Working Group on SP. Guidelines including product sheets are specifically provided for the areas of ICT, generators and batteries, catering and food, cleaning, furniture, stationery, vehicles and freight forwarding. See: www.greeningtheblue.org/resources/procurement

Internal capacity building

In order to be able to successfully implement and advance SP and, in particular, reflecting of the specialist knowledge required to implement it into the procurement process, UN practitioners require support to develop sufficient professional expertise to include sustainability aspects in procurement processes. One way is through skills and knowledge building through training, certifications and other interventions.

Figure 16

SP training Interventions
(in percentage)

Supply chain development

Suppliers have control over the environmental and social impacts through the goods and services they supply, and through their operations and own supply chain. The reporting framework covers indicators that map whether and how organizations identify and monitor the sustainability risks and performance of its suppliers.

The United Nations Supplier Code of Conduct (UNSOC)¹⁷ can guide the SP process by expressing the expectations that the United Nations has of its suppliers. Requiring suppliers to adhere to the UNSOC implies making specific requirements of suppliers and contractors in terms of social, ethical and environmental aspects.

By ensuring that suppliers endorse and comply with the UNSOC, organizations protect their reputation by only dealing with companies who adhere to a high standard of ethical conduct, social responsibility and environmental good practice.

UN agencies, organization, funds and programmes require their suppliers to accept and adhere to the UNSOC when registering their interest of doing business with the organization in the United Nations Global Marketplace, where acceptance of the UNSOC is a mandatory requirement. However, the reporting demonstrates that enforcement of supplier codes of conduct is infrequently monitored, with few organizations actively checking adherence. Active monitoring activities can include using channels such as ethics offices and hotlines to report misconduct, establishment of sanction committees, performance of audits, etc.

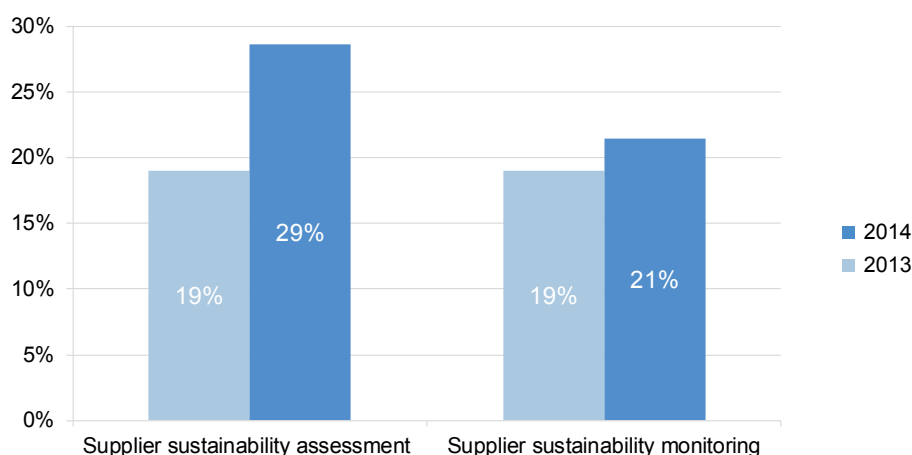

Besides utilizing the UN supplier code of conduct, organizations can undertake several other measures to enhance sustainability performance and minimize sustainability risks from arising in the supply chain. These measures can be undertaken both pre- and post-contract. In the pre-contract stage, organizations can undertake initial and continuing sustainability screening or assessments. Post-contract, organizations can monitor progress in terms of sustainability performance against agreed KPIs.

Supplier sustainability assessments (pre-contract) and monitoring (post-contract) are areas where the UN system has only started implementation. As per Figure 17, 29 per cent of the organizations have initiated supplier sustainability assessments. This is up from 19 per cent from 2014. Monitoring of supplier sustainability performance is also on the rise (from 19 per cent in 2013 to 21 per cent in 2014).

United Nations procurement and the Global Compact

Another means available to the UN system to minimize environmental and social risks related to suppliers is to bring to the attention and encourage prospective and current suppliers to sign up to the principles of the United Nations Global Compact. The Global Compact is a strategic policy initiative for businesses that are committed to aligning their operations and strategies with ten universally accepted principles in the areas of human rights, labour, the environment and anti-corruption. As the world's largest global corporate citizenship initiative, the Global Compact is a voluntary initiative, a learning dialogue and a platform for action. For the eighth consecutive year, the 2014 ASR features an analysis of the participation of suppliers to the UN system in the Global Compact. The United Nations strongly encourages its suppliers to support the Global Compact and its principles.

Figure 11

Share of UN procurement from Global Compact members, 2010-2014 (based on orders > $30,000)
(in millions of US dollars and percentage)

The share of UN procurement volume from Global Compact members has grown steadily over the last five years in terms of absolute volume. In 2014, the total procurement volume has increased significantly. Therefore, in 2014 the relative share of procurement from Global Compact members was 25.3 per cent (based on orders larger than $30,000), which is a decrease of 2 percentage points from 2013, notwithstanding a 7.6 per cent increase in absolute terms (Figure 11).

The main proportion of procurement from Global Compact members is procured from developed countries (over 70 per cent). This is a clear difference from overall UN procurement, where purchases from developing countries and countries with economies in transition account for a lower figure of 38 per cent.

Figure 18 shows the relationship between procurement from Global Compact members and total UN procurement for different regions. Confirming the analyses in previous years, suppliers to the UN system located in the northern hemisphere have a relatively larger share of procurement among all Global Compact members.

Figure 18

Procurement from Global Compact members as a share of total UN procurement of large orders (> $30,000) by region, 2014
(in millions of US dollars and percentage)

As Figure 19 demonstrates, procurement from Global Compact members in developing countries has stabilized around one-fourth of the total (27.3 per cent in 2014). However, regional performance is uneven and fluctuates from year-to-year. In 2014, quite a significant share of Global Compact membership can be found in Asia (18.6 per cent), while procurement volume from Global Compact members in Africa indicates a small increase but remains limited (8 per cent). Procurement volume from Global Compact members in Central and South America has dramatically dropped over time and remains under 1 per cent in 2014.

Sustainable procurement outlook for 2015

There are eleven UN organizations with SP interventions planned for 2015.

Figure 20

Interventions planned for 2015
(in number of organizations)

Many of the interventions planned are related to supply chain development (Figure 11) and include actively encouraging suppliers to sign up to the Global Compact, capturing sustainability information during the supplier registration process as well as the monitoring of suppliers sustainability performance during contract execution.

The UN Annual Statistical Report presents all data in US dollars. Some organizations, have their budgets and accounting in currencies other than US dollars thereby necessitating currency conversion using an average annual conversion rate. Due to extreme exchange rate fluctuations, data presented in US dollars may show trends in terms of procurement volume increases or decreases that are the reciprocal of the trend shown by the data in the original currency.

Distribution of countries and territories

The country distributions presented are for statistical convenience only and follow those used by the Statistics Division, Department of Economic and Social Affairs (DESA) of the United Nations. They are grouped by economic criteria or membership of trade agreements for the purposes of statistical analysis and research. The term “economies”, as used in this report, describes regions, countries and territories.

There is no established convention for the designation of “developed” and “developing” countries or areas in the United Nations system. In common practice, Israel and Japan in Asia, Bermuda, Canada, Greenland, Saint Pierre et Miquelon, and the United States in northern America, Australia and New Zealand in Oceania, and Europe are considered “developed” regions or areas. This report includes all UN member states divided into three major categories: developing countries, transition economies and developed countries.

The designations employed do not imply the expression of any opinion whatsoever on the part of the United Nations concerning the legal status of any country, territory, city or area, or of its authorities, or concerning the delimitation of its frontiers or boundaries.

The designations “developing”, “in transition”, and “developed” are intended for statistical convenience and do not necessarily express a judgement about the stage reached by a particular country or area in the development process.
